

Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger recently signed Senate Bill 777 into law. Under the guise of “protecting” homosexual students from bullying, SB 777 bans any teaching or activities in schools that “promote a discriminatory bias” against homosexuals, transgenders, bisexuals, and those with gender (perceived or actual) issues. References to “mom and dad” will be considered promoting bias against homosexuals. Any school activities such as having a prom king and queen or gender-specific bathrooms would also be discriminatory. Children as young as five will be subjected to the promotion of homosexuality.

SB 777 seeks to normalize alternative lifestyles in California schools with special recognition for homosexuality, bisexuality, and transexuality. Parents want the assurance that when their children go to school they expect their children to learn the fundamentals of reading, writing and arithmetic —not social indoctrination regarding alternative sexual lifestyles.

Thankfully, Save Our Kids has started a referendum to overturn this outrageous assault on our values. The campaign must obtain over 500,000 signatures must be obtained to qualify the referendum for the June 2008 ballot.
